

2004 Estate Red Mountain Syrah

Red wines from Red Mountain have the tendency to show excellent fruit characteristics and powerful, well-structured tannin profiles. As a result, Syrah grown here is highly coveted.

Kiona Vineyards and Winery planted our first Syrah vineyard in 1995, and we have come to view it as a definitive grape of our AVA along with Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot.

Deep, brooding wines with an uncommon intensity of flavor and structure, along with gorgeous color and ample minerality are hallmark traits of Red Mountain Syrah.

Our estate Ranch at the End of the Road vineyard is located high on the hill and on a considerable slope, resulting in superior air/water drainage and significant heat accumulation. The Syrah grown here ripens deeply and produces plush, full wines bursting with concentrated spice, earth, and dark fruit.

For the 2004 vintage, we blended in a small amount of Petit Verdot from our neighboring Heart of the Hill estate vineyard to accentuate the beautiful deep color and robust structure we have come to expect from Red Mountain Syrah.

As a relatively small percentage of our production and of the grapes grown on Red Mountain, not many have the opportunity to try Syrah grown here. It's one of our favorites, and captures the essence of the AVA like few grapes can.
